Josh Crumpton

Host of No Small Water, the series on fishing, travel, food and conservation

Premieres November 2026 • Outside TV • Pursuit • Regional sports networks incl. NBC Sports

ABOUT JOSH

Josh started washing dishes at a deli and ended up running his own restaurants. Then he walked away to hunt, fish and write. No Small Water is where those two lives meet: he fishes a river, then goes into town to find out who depends on it — the cook, the rancher, the artist, the biologist.

CREDENTIALS

- Creator, host and executive producer, No Small Water
- Writer, Texas Parks & Wildlife Magazine
- Trout Unlimited national board member
- Texas Parks & Wildlife Foundation ambassador
- Retired chef/restaurateur; wine industry veteran
- Wild game cook; hunting and fishing guide

CONVERSATIONS JOSH BRINGS

Why small water matters — Every creek feeds a fishery, a harbor, a town. What a small stream means to the people living downstream of it.

The last free river — Filming California's last major undammed river, one county over from the Klamath, the largest dam removal in U.S. history.

Restaurateur to riverbank — Reading a place through its food: fish from the morning's water, provisions from the town down the road.

Taking agency of our money by using our voice — Hunters and anglers have funded American conservation for nearly a century through Pittman-Robertson. Money isn't enough. That community needs to speak up for rivers, too.

A new kind of fishing show — Fishing as the way in, not the subject: a character-driven series built by a small independent crew.

BOOK A RECORDING

Pick a time that fits your show.

30 minutes to 2 hours · Weekdays, 7 am–9 pm Central calendly.com/texasjosh/podcast

Trailer & press: texasjosh.com/no-small-water
Contact: shout@texasjosh.com
Newsletter: Wild Dispatch • texasjosh.substack.com
Season One Partners:
American Rivers, conservation partner
OnWater, technology partner
Poncho Outdoors, style partner
Dometic Mobile Cooling, kitchen partner